BREMEN LANDED SAFELY ON ICE OF A LAKE

SWEPT LOW IN TEETH OF TERRIFIC GALE

BREMEN CREW TELLS STORY OF THEIR PERILOUS
FLIGHT
MID-ATLANTIC, DELAYED
BY FOG-BANK

Out of the frozen reaches of the far north which has held prisoner the German-Irish trans-Atlantic fliers since their dramatic landing on Greenly Island, Labrador, the first story of their hazardous flight to America has come through to the United Press.

The narrative of the Bremen's feat was sent from Long Point of Blanc Sablon to Seven Islands in the upper St. Lawrence river and thence relayed to the United Press, New York.

Seven Islands, Que., April 16.—(U.P.)—In the face of almost insurmountable obstacles, the German-Irish crew of the Junkers monoplane Bremen still hope that they can fly out from Greenly Island—where they were forced to land Friday afternoon—and make their way back to civilization.

They have obtained material to make repairs on the Bremen, the United Press was advised in dispatches from Blanc Sablon, and are attempting to get it in shape to continue their flight as far as possible to New York if that is feasible.

A snow storm is blowing along the entire Labrador coast, however, and it is not believed likely that an attempt to take-off from icebound Greenly Island will be made for another 24, or possibly 48 hours.

The Fairchild monoplane of the Canadian Trans-continental Airways, bearing Dr. Louis Cuisinier and Dante Schiller, arrived at Greenly Island last night but it was considered unlikely that even this plane—which was undamaged in landing—would attempt a return trip to Murray Bay, from where it started, or to Seven Islands, where it stopped to refuel, until the velocity of the gale which is sweeping Belle Isle straits is reduced.

Meanwhile, the United Press correspondent has received via Blanc Sablon, which is situated on the mainland just across from Greenly Island, a connected story of the flight, describing the dangers encountered in the westward crossing of the north Atlantic ocean and the forced landing which was made on Greenly Island when the Bremen—with Capt. Hermann Koehl, Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld and Commandant James Fitzmaurice aboard—exhausted her entire fuel supply.

After leaving Baldonnel airdrome near Dublin, Ireland, Thursday morning, the fliers encountered unexpectedly favorable weather over the first part of their flight. The wind was blowing against them but it was not of sufficient velocity to seriously impede their progress.

At about mid-Atlantic, however, the winds became stronger and they ran into their first serious fog-bank, forcing them to dip their plane down to a dangerously low altitude.

Then their strong hearts were chilled as they ran into a driving snow storm which turned slowly into sleet and they noticed that their plane was being weighted down by the coating of ice.

The winds became stronger and more furious. They feared they were running into the same spot which had brought defeat to Nungesser and Coli, to Princess Anne of Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two companions, and the Hon. Elsie MacKay and Capt. Walter Hinchliffe, all of whom were lost in previous attempts to do what these men now were trying to do.

The gas supply, however, was running lower and lower. They must reach land soon or plunge into the sea. They decided to come down to a still lower altitude in the hope of sighting land.

This they did and it was only about 20 minutes later that they were cheered by the knowledge they were flying over land.

Finally, however, at about 5:30 P. M. Friday, their fuel supply was reduced to virtually nothing and they realized they must land at once, and found to their consternation they were over water again.

But nearby they sighted an island and made for it directly. They were flying low now, ready to land as soon

TWO CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH, GRANDMA KILLED IN FIRE

Youngstown, O., April 16.—(U.P.)—Two children were burned to death and their grandmother was killed while attempting to rescue them from a fire which destroyed their home here.

Florence Rae Loveless, 5, and her sister, Dolores May, 3, and were burned to death when they were trapped in their bedroom on the second floor.

The grandmother, Mrs. Mary Martin, 68, fell from a second floor window while bravely attempting to reach the girls. Mrs. Martin apparently was overcome by smoke.

THEORY THAT DYNAMITE MAY HAVE CAUSED BLAST

OR NITROGLYCERINE INSTEAD OF GASOLINE SET OFF
EXPLOSION

INVESTIGATION AT WEST PLAINS,
MO., INTO DEATH OF 39
PEOPLE

West Plains, Mo., April 16.—(U.P.)—A theory that dynamite or nitroglycerine—not gasoline—caused the explosion here Friday night which killed 39 people was under a triple investigation today.

Prosecuting Attorney Richard Greene of Howell county, Sheriff Fred W. Jurnes and Chief of Police J. A. Bridges of West Plains are jointly gathering evidence for submission to a coroner's jury which will complete its work Wednesday.

Meanwhile, as grief-stricken residents of this little Ozark mountain town prepared to pay final rites to the 21 identified and 18 unidentified dead, the three officials continued their investigation and checked important developments of yesterday.

The body of J. W. Wiser, proprietor of a garage situated under a community dance hall where the explosion occurred, was exhumed one hour after burial in Oaklawn cemetery yesterday. It was found he was suffering from burns resembling acid. His wounds were considered significantly different from the other victims.

Although admittedly without a definite clue to the exact nature of the explosion, Greene, Jurnes and Bridges considered the possibility that West Plains had been victimized in the manner that Andrew P. Kehoe, a demented school board official, dynamited a school at the little town of Bath, Mich., last year, when 44 persons were killed.

Bridges considered as significant the fact that the gasoline tank of the Wiser garage—a 60 gallon portable affair—was found virtually intact, undamaged except for external bruises probably caused by falling bricks.

As they could discover an even half-way suitable stretch of land.

As they circled over the island they found a tiny lake almost below them. They carried neither poisons nor skills. It would be a hazardous landing with the possibility of cracking up their plane, but it was the only chance they had.

They came down as cautiously as possible in the face of the gale, and came to a sharp and skiddy landing on the ice. The ice cracked and the plane's tail skid was damaged.

They had conquered the Atlantic but they had no idea where they were or in what direction they should strike out to reach some sort of civilization.

It was not long, however, until they found the Greenly Island light-house and Jacques Le Templier who tends it. They were taken in, warmed and fed, and since that time have been quartered comfortably.

From Le Templier they received their bearings—first learned where they had landed. They studied their maps to find how far they had been off their course and how far they must fly to reach the United States. They still hoped to make a landing on Mitchell Field, Long Island.

FIVE BANDITS KIDNAP 4 MEN, GET $200,000

SURROUNDED IN GARAGE, THEY SHOOT WAY TO FREEDOM,
KILLING POLICEMAN

LOOT RECOVERED IN ABANDONED
CAR OF BANDIT
GANG

Toledo, O., April 16.—(U.P.)—Five bandits kidnaped an express messenger and three guards here today, seized $200,000 in loot and thirty minutes later were surrounded in a garage by police.

Abandoning the loot, the robbers fought their way to freedom with sawed-off shotguns, after killing Patrolman George Zientara.

The robbers leaped into the truck and menaced the messenger and guards with the shotguns. The chauffeur was forced to follow a circuitous route to a lonely spot near the University of Toledo, where two other machines drew alongside.

The messenger and guards were gagged and their hands were bound with tape. While three of the bandits transferred the loot to the other cars, the other robbers dumped their victims into the truck.

The robbery was discovered by a university student who found the truck. He liberated the four men and called police and federal officers.

The messenger and guards had just left the union station with a valuable consignment of cash, securities and travelers checks when the robbers, riding in a sedan, forced their truck to the curb.

Two patrolmen were first to respond. One of these was Zientara. The bandit cars were driven into a garage several blocks from where the robbery took place.

As Zientara and his fellow officer approached the bandits opened fire, then flew through a rear entrance. Zientara pursued them, firing as he ran. As he emerged through the rear entrance, he was felled by bullets from a machine gun in a nearby house.

The bandits swarmed out of the house and behind a shotgun and machine gun barrage, leaped into the police car, and fled, leaving the loot in one of their machines.

The bandits apparently had studiously prepared for the kidnapping and theft. They worked with precision throughout.

The university student, John White, was looking out of a window of his home nearby when the express truck was brought to a halt. He ran into the street as the bandit cars sped away.

Several guns, a large quantity of ammunition and explosives and fuses were found later in the robbers' garage.

C. E. Mitchell, driver of the truck and the guards were proceeding toward Broadway when the first bandit car forced them to the curb.

The truck was loaded with a week end accumulation of cash, checks and securities.

Seated in the rear of the truck, with rifles across their knees, were the guards, Hermann Steinman, Paul Stewart and George Baldwin.

Mitchell failed to notice the bandit car as he reached the Broadway intersection. The first intimation of the holdup he had was when one of the bandits leaped onto the truck's running board.

The guards were disarmed and Mitchell was ordered to drive to the point near the university. The men were bound and two safes in the truck were transferred to the bandit cars.

The bandits sped to their garage closely followed by Zientara and Patrolman John Birkupski.

The gun battle followed.

LOWER QUOTA OF NAVY ENLISTMENT

25,000 TEXTILE WORKERS OBJECT TO WAGE CUT

New Bedford, Mass., April 16.—(U.P.)—Protesting a 10 per cent wage reduction, approximately 25,000 New Bedford textile workers went on strike today.

The walk-out, affecting 26 mills, climaxed a fruitless eleven-hour effort to reach a compromise between the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' association and the New Bedford Textile council. It was estimated the strike would result in a $600,000 weekly loss of earnings.

GOVERNMENT SCORES HEAVILY IN SINCLAIR CASE

JUSTICE BAILEY EXCLUDES CERTAIN DEFENSE TESTIMONY

TENDING TO SHOW LEASING OF
TEAPOT DOME OIL RESERVE
WAS NECESSARY

Washington, April 16.—(U.P.)—The government scored heavily today in the oil conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair, when Justice Bailey in District of Columbia supreme court excluded defense testimony tending to show that leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve was necessary because of oil drainage into other fields.

Justice Bailey upheld the objections of Owen J. Roberts, special government oil prosecutor, that such testimony was irrelevant. He ruled it had no direct bearing on the indictment charging Sinclair got the Teapot Dome lease through conspiracy.

George Hoover, defense counsel, contended that the eliminated evidence was to be used to show that former Secretary of Navy Edwin Denby was the prime factor in the leasing of Teapot Dome and that former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall in granting the lease to Sinclair, merely acted as agent for Denby. He said he was trying to use the drainage evidence to show there was an emergency and that the leasing of the reserve was necessary to prevent the government from losing its valuable oil.

Evidence of three defense witnesses was stopped by Justice Bailey on government objection. First, E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of interior, was excused while testifying in support of Sinclair's contention that competitive bidding was not necessary on Teapot Dome. Second, the court ruled out exhibition by A. C. Veatch, Sinclair official, of a model of Teapot Dome to show the alleged drainage. Third, Carroll H. Wegemann, former government petroleum expert, was prevented from answering questions of Defense Attorney Hoover along the same lines.

The defense reverses occurred soon after the government had finally rested its case. On opening of court, Justice Bailey said the government could not introduce testimony of E. L. Doherty Jr., that he had carried $100,000 from his father rich oil man, to Fall prior to the naval oil lease transactions. The government was permitted, however, to present two witnesses to show that Fall had received $25,000 bonds as fees from Harry F. Sinclair in 1923 after Fall and Sinclair had completed an unsuccessful hunt for oil concessions in Russia. These two witnesses completed the prosecution's case.

ONE FIN WAS BROKEN BUT CRAFT MANEUVERED WELL

COMMANDER UMBERTO NOBILE
TO ATTEMPT POLAR
FLIGHT SOON

THOUSANDS GREET SHIP WHEN
IT LANDED AT STOLP,
PRUSSIA

Stolp, Prussia, April 16.—(U.P.)—Battered in mid-air by thunder and snow storms and threatened by lightning that cracked perilously close, the big Italian dirigible Italia—in which Commander Umberto Nobile will attempt to fly over the North Pole—swept down to a safe landing at Seddin airdrome today, and a crowd of several thousand persons was at the field when at 7:45 over Stolp. It finally landed at 8:35 A. M. The Italia floated gracefully A. M.

"The weather was bad almost from the start," Nobile said, explaining the flight had satisfactorily proved the Italia's capacity.

"The weather turned worse Sunday night when we were running into thunderstorms for hours. Nevertheless the Italia weathered the storm. Although one fin was broken, the craft maneuvered well," Nobile said.

Despite snowstorms and freezing cold through which the Italia sailed, no ice crust formed on the Italia's body, Nobile said. He was extremely proud of the dirigible's performance in those hours over Silesia when it was buffeted about by the storm.

E. M. STATLER, NOTED HOTEL MAN, DIES AT NEW YORK

New York, April 16.—(U.P.)—E. M. Statler, head of the Statler chain of hotels, died today in his suite at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, who had been attending the hotel man for the last two weeks, said death was caused by double pneumonia. Mrs. Statler was with her husband when he died.

Statler was 64 years old and was widely known as the originator of "perfect service" as a hotel slogan. He recently installed radio receiving sets in every room of his many hotels, introducing the event himself through a nation-wide radio hook-up.

Dr. Lambert issued the following statement:

"Mr. Statler had been ill for two weeks of double pneumonia and general influenza. He became critically ill three days ago and was conscious until an hour before his death."

Mrs. Statler said private funeral services probably would be held Wednesday.

PETITION ASKED REMOVAL OF CASS COUNTY ATTORNEY

The governor refused to discuss the petition which was signed by R. E. Snell, Pine River.

LACK OF PARTY SPIRIT SPELLS LESS INTEREST IN VOTING

St. Paul, April 16.—(U.P.)—Lack of party spirit which featured elections before the primary system was adopted is the cause of failure of many citizens to cast their votes, Charles W. Sterling, St. Paul attorney, declared at a weekly meeting of the Open Forum here Sunday.

According to Mr. Sterling, every voter belonged to a party in those days and had a more personal interest in going to the polls. Political machines were also active and worked toward getting the voters to cast their ballots, he said.

SHORT RESPITE IN PRE-CONVENTION POLITICAL FIGHT

BOTH MAJOR PARTIES INDULGE
IN A BRIEF ARMISTICE

NO PRIMARY ELECTIONS THIS
WEEK, BUT NEXT WEEK
HAS MANY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 16.—A temporary respite was declared this week in the pre-convention presidential battles in both major parties.

No primary elections are scheduled after the hectic last week when half a dozen states selected delegates. But next week will furnish the climax of the campaign when Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Nevada choose delegates April 24.

The only conflict scheduled for this week is the Iowa democratic convention Friday at Des Moines, Iowa, where Gov. Al Smith's leaders will pit themselves against the county delegates of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and E. T. Meredith, a McAdoo leader and a native son.

The contest has aroused attention because Smith apparently walked off with a lion's share of the county delegates in the county conventions last week. Meredith charged the Smith group used improper methods and contended that he would win the 26 delegates of the state if these methods were discontinued.

Meredith's charge drew a reply from Wilbur Marsh, former chairman of the democratic national committee, who said Meredith was not in the race but that Reed is the man who will contest Smith's right to the delegates.

Only eleven more primaries remain to be held including those next week. The other eight and their dates are: California, May 1; Maryland, May 7; Indiana, May 8; New Jersey, May 15; Oregon, May 18; South Dakota, May 22; West Virginia, May 29, and Florida, June 5.

American National Chemical Convention In Session at St. Louis

Minneapolis, April 16.—(U.P.)—Nine members of the faculty of the University of Minnesota are in attendance at the American National Chemical Convention at St. Louis, Mo., which begins today and ends Thursday.

Leading chemists of the United States will discuss problems at the convention. Dr. William J. Mayo, Rochester, will be one of the principal speakers.

The Minnesota delegation is headed by Samuel C. Lund, director of the school of chemistry.

Court Hearing Is To Determine Gangster's Mentality

Benton, Ill., April 16.—(U.P.)—A circuit court hearing to determine the sanity or insanity of Charley Birger, notorious gang lord of southern Illinois, who is under sentence of death for murder, opened here today before Judge Charles H. Miller. Birger was to have been executed on the gallows here last Friday for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City—slain by two of his henchmen Dec. 12, 1926—but a petition for the sanity hearing automatically gained him a stay under the laws of Illinois.

DISASTER IN THE VICINITY OF WILLIAMSBURG, PA.

TWO STORY FRAME BUILDING OF
EMBRO KRETACHALK BURNS
TO GROUND

BLAIR COUNTY CORONER BELIEVES
DEATH LIST MAY INCREASE

Altoona, Pa., April 16.—(U.P.)—Thirteen persons were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the home of Embro Kretachalk, at Blair Four, two miles south of Williamsburg.

The Blair county coroner who went to the scene of the fire said he believed the death list may be increased as it is thought many other persons were in the dwelling, a two story frame building, when the fire started.

County authorities were unable to give the names of the dead.

However, it was announced they included Kretachalk's daughter, who was married Saturday, five other children, at least six guests and Mrs. Kretachalk.

The fire followed a wedding celebration which began Saturday and lasted until last night.

Kretachalk, it was reported, was the only person in the house to escape from the fire.

It was believed that all members of the party had retired, for the night. Kretachalk was awakened by the dense smoke which filled the house and endeavored to awaken other members as he escaped from the house.

There is no fire protection in Blair Four, a small hamlet.

Neighbors hurried to the house when they heard Kretachalk's cries for help, but they were unable to enter the structure.

Details of the fire were difficult to obtain because of the excitement in the little hamlet and the lack of communicating facilities.

WINTER SPORT EQUIPMENT IS REJUVENATED

St. Paul, April 16.—(U.P.)—Winter sports equipment, which gathered dust in attics and basements for a few short weeks was dragged into daylight over the week end, and Sunday saw practically all outdoor sports of winter in full swing.

Many parts of the state staged ski tournaments, while coasting, tobogganing, and some skating also was reported. The ski tournaments rank among the first ever to be held in April.

Other brave lovers of the great outdoors sped as rapidly as drifted roads would permit to the trout haunts of the state—Sunday being the first day of the fishing season in the state.

GOV. AL SMITH ENJOYS VACATION IN DIXIE LAND

Asheville, N. C., April 16.—(U.P.)—Gov. Al Smith may be at the exclusive Biltmore Forest club for his first Dixie vacation, but he has no intention of spending all of his time there.

Firemen, policemen—railroad men and today factory workers—are among those Smith has been most anxious to include among his North Carolina friends.

Friday he visited the Central fire station here.

Sunday he went to Old Fort, N. C. to renew the acquaintance of George Sandlin, railroad station master who greeted him on his way to Asheville. He saw the two-man police station and inspected the cells. He also met W. L. Dawson, chief of the Old Fort fire department. Dawson said afterward he would vote democratic in November for the first time in his life.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN MEET AT OMAHA

Minneapolis, April 16.—(U.P.)—The University of Minnesota will send nine representatives to the National Association of University Women at Omaha, April 20 and 21, it has been announced.

The delegation will be headed by Sister Antonia, president of St. Catherine's College, St. Paul.

The walk-out, affecting 26 mills, climaxed a fruitless eleventh-hour effort to reach a compromise between the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' association and the New Bedford Textile council.

It was estimated the strike would result in a $600,000 weekly loss of earnings.

GOVERNMENT SCORES HEAVILY IN SINCLAIR CASE

JUSTICE BAILEY EXCLUDES CER-TAIN DEFENSE TESTI-MONY

TENDING TO SHOW LEASING OF
TEAPOT DOME OIL RESERVE
WAS NECESSARY

Washington, April 16.—(UP)—The government scored heavily today in the oil conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair, when Justice Bailey in District of Columbia supreme court excluded defense testimony tending to show that leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve was necessary because of oil drainage into other fields.

Justice Bailey upheld the objections of Owen J. Roberts, special government oil prosecutor, that such testimony was irrelevant. He ruled it had no direct bearing on the indictment charging Sinclair got the Teapot Dome lease through conspiracy.

George Hoover, defense counsel, contended that the eliminated evidence was to be used to show that former Secretary of Navy Edwin Denby was the prime factor in the leasing of Teapot Dome and that former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall in granting the lease to Sinclair, merely acted as agent for Denby. He said he was trying to use the drainage evidence to show there was an emergency and that the leasing of the reserve was necessary to prevent the government from losing its valuable oil.

Evidence of three defense witnesses was stopped by Justice Bailey on government objection. First, E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of interior, was excused while testifying in support of Sinclair's contention that competitive bidding was not necessary on Teapot Dome. Second, the court ruled out exhibition by A. C. Veatch, Sinclair official, of a model of Teapot Dome to show the alleged drainage. Third, Carroll H. Wegemann, former government petroleum expert, was prevented from answering questions of Defense Attorney Hoover along the same lines.

The defense reverses occurred soon after the government had finally rested its case. On opening of court, Justice Bailey said the government could not introduce testimony of E. L. Doherty Jr., that he had carried $100,000 from his father, naval oil man, to Fall prior to the naval oil lease transactions. The government was permitted, however, to present two witnesses to show that Fall had received $25,000 bonds as fees from Harry F. Sinclair in 1923 after Fall and Sinclair had completed an unsuccessful hunt for oil concessions in Russia. These two witnesses completed the prosecution's case.

SHOT INTO HAYSTACK, THOUGHT IT ANIMAL, KILLED MAN INSTEAD

Little Falls, Minn., April 16.—(UP)—Carl Van Hercke charged with manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of an unidentified man who hid in a strawstack on his farm, was acquitted by a jury which reported Sunday after deliberating 9 hours. COMMANDER UMBERTO NOBILE
TO ATTEMPT POLAR
FLIGHT SOON

THOUSANDS GREET SHIP WHEN
IT LANDED AT STOLP,
PRUSSIA

Stolp, Prussia, April 16.—(UP)—Battered in mid-air by thunder and snow storms and threatened by lightning that cracked perilously close, the big Italian dirigible Italia—in which Commander Umberto Nobile will attempt to fly over the North Pole—swept down to a safe landing at Seddin airdrome today.

Nobile was greeted by air officials and a crowd of several thousand persons was at the field when at 7:45 over Stolp. It finally landed at 8:35 A. M. the Italia floated gracefully A. M.

"The weather was bad almost from the start," Nobile said, explaining the flight had satisfactorily proved the Italia's capacity.

"The weather turned worse Sunday night when we were running into thunderstorms for hours. Nevertheless the Italia weathered the storm. Although one fin was broken, the craft maneuvered well," Nobile said.

Despite snowstorms and freezing cold through which the Italia sailed, no ice crust formed on the Italia's body, Nobile said. He was extremely proud of the dirigible's performance in those hours over Silesia when it was buffeted about by the storm.

E. M. STATLER, NOTED HOTEL MAN, DIES AT NEW YORK

New York, April 16.—(UP)—E. M. Statler, head of the Statler chain of hotels, died today in his suite at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, who had been attending the hotel man for the last two weeks, said death was caused by double pneumonia. Mrs. Statler was with her husband when he died.

Statler was 64 years old and was widely known as the originator of "perfect service" as a hotel slogan. He recently installed radio receiving sets in every room of his many hotels, introducing the event himself through a nation-wide radio hook-up.

Dr. Lambert issued the following statement:

"Mr. Statler had been ill for two weeks of double pneumonia and general influenza. He became critically ill three days ago and was conscious until an hour before his death."

Mrs. Statler said private funeral services probably would be held Wednesday.

Court Hearing Is To Determine Gangster's Mentality

Benton, Ill., April 16.—(UP)—A circuit court hearing to determine the sanity or insanity of Charles Birger, notorious gang lord of southern Illinois, who is under sentence of death for murder, opened here today before Judge Charles H. Miller. Birger was to have been executed on the gallows here last Friday for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City—slain by two of his henchmen Dec. 12, 1926—but a petition for the sanity hearing automatically gained him a stay under the laws of Illinois.

LACK OF PARTY SPIRIT SPELLS LESS INTEREST IN VOTING

St. Paul, April 16.—(UP)—Lack of party spirit which featured elections before the primary system was adopted is the cause of failure of many citizens to cast their votes, Charles W. Sterling, St. Paul attorney, declared at a weekly meeting of the Open Forum here Sunday.

According to Mr. Sterling, every voter belonged to a party in those days and had a more personal interest in going to the polls. Political machines were also active and worked toward getting the voters to cast their ballots, he said.

SHORT RESPITE IN PRE-CONVENTION POLITICAL FIGHT

BOTH MAJOR PARTIES INDULGE
IN A BRIEF ARMIS-
TICE

NO PRIMARY ELECTIONS THIS WEEK, BUT NEXT WEEK
HAS MANY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 16.—A temporary respite was declared this week in the pre-convention presidential battles in both major parties.

No primary elections are scheduled after the hectic last week when half a dozen states selected delegates. But next week will furnish the climax of the campaign when Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Nevada choose delegates April 24.

The only conflict scheduled for this week is the Iowa democratic convention Friday at Des Moines, Iowa, where Gov. Al Smith's leaders will pit themselves against the county delegates of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and E. T. Meredith, a McAdoo leader and a native son.

The contest has aroused attention because Smith apparently walked off with a lion's share of the county delegates in the county conventions last week. Meredith charged the Smith group used improper methods and contended that he would win the 26 delegates of the state if these methods were discontinued.

Meredith's charge drew a reply from Wilbur Marsh, former chairman of the democratic national committee, who said Meredith was not in the race but that Reed is the man who will contest Smith's right to the delegates.

Only eleven more primaries remain to be held including those next week. The other eight and their dates are: California, May 1; Maryland, May 7; Indiana, May 8; New Jersey, May 15; Oregon, May 18; South Dakota, May 22; West Virginia, May 29, and Florida, June 5.

DISASTER IN THE VICINITY OF WILLIAMSBURG, PA.

TWO STORY FRAME BUILDING OF
EMBRO KRETACHALK BURNS
TO GROUND

BLAIR COUNTY CORONER BE-LIEVES DEATH LIST MAY INCREASE

Altoona, Pa., April 16.—(UP)—Thirteen persons were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the home of Embro Kretachalk, at Blair Four, two miles south of Williamsburg.

The Blair county coroner who went to the scene of the fire said he believed the death list may be increased as it is thought many other persons were in the dwelling, a two story frame building, when the fire started.

County authorities were unable to give the names of the dead.

However, it was announced they included Kretachalk's daughter, who was married Saturday, five other children, at least six guests and Mrs. Kretachalk.

The fire followed a wedding celebration which began Saturday and lasted until last night.

Kretachalk, it was reported, was the only person in the house to escape from the fire.

It was believed that all members of the party had retired, for the night. Kretachalk was awakened by the dense smoke which filled the house and endeavored to awaken other members as he escaped from the house.

There is no fire protection in Blair Four, a small hamlet.

Neighbors hurried to the house when they heard Kretachalk's cries for help, but they were unable to enter the structure.

Details of the fire were difficult to obtain because of the excitement in the little hamlet and the lack of communicating facilities.

WINTER SPORT EQUIPMENT IS REJUVENATED

St. Paul, April 16.—(UP)—Winter sports equipment, which gathered dust in attics and basements for a few short weeks was dragged into daylight over the week end, and Sunday saw practically all outdoor sports of winter in full swing.

Many parts of the state staged ski tournaments, while coasting, tobogganing, and some skating also was reported. The ski tournaments rank among the first ever to be held in April.

Other brave lovers of the great outdoors sped as rapidly as drifted roads would permit to the trout haunts of the state—Sunday being the first day of the fishing season in the state.

GOV. AL SMITH ENJOYS VACATION IN DIXIE LAND

Asheville, N. C., April 16.—(UP)—Gov. Al Smith may be at the exclusive Biltmore Forest club for his first Dixie vacation, but he has no intention of spending all of his time there.

Firemen, policemen—railroad men and today factory workers—are among those Smith has been most anxious to include among his North Carolina friends.

Friday he visited the Central fire station here.

Sunday he went to Old Fort, N. C. to renew the acquaintance of George Sandlin, railroad station master who greeted him on his way to Asheville. He saw the two-man police station and inspected the cells. He also met W. L. Dawson, chief of the Old Fort fire department. Dawson said afterward he would vote democratic in November for the first time in his life.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN MEET AT OMAHA

Wherever you go you hear people praising the General Electric Refrigerator. Almost overnight it has taken a prominent place in the thoughts of homemakers.

One hears of its remarkable simplicity. That it hasn't a single belt, fan or drain-pipe. That it hasn't a bit of machinery under the cabinet—or in the basement. That it never needs oiling. There are many, many comments on the quietness with which it operates. There is much enthusiasm for the extreme roominess and the splendid strength of its gleaming, up-on-legs cabinet.

Overnight, it seems . . . but for more than fifteen years the vast laboratories of General Electric have been busy with the development of this truly revolutionary refrigerator. Will you not come in and see the various models? Time payments can be arranged, if you prefer.

AN INDUSTRY'S AMAZING GROWTH

BRAINERD is assured the tourist business is growing constantly and knows the value of fostering this source of wealth. Under the heading, "An Industry's Amazing Growth," the Minneapolis Tribune of Sunday comments on tourist movement and the ever growing development of our vacation resources.

Roy E. Dunn, president of the Ten Thousand Lakes association, tells the Moorhead Chamber of Commerce that persons spending their annual vacations in the state have increased from 22,000 to 1,441,000 in 10 years. Standing on the threshold of a new tourist season, Minnesota will do well to comprehend the amazing extent of this increase and to take stock of the causes underlying it. Mr. Dunn says, in effect, that there were 65 times as many tourists visiting the state in 1927 as in 1917. Theoretically, at least, the state's tourist income has increased 6,400 per cent in a decade. An individual who saw an incidental source of income swell to such proportions in 10 years would regard the increase as highly satisfactory. A corporation which saw its volume of business increase 65 times between 1917 and 1927 would consider its growth phenomenal, and would begin to suspect that it was selling a very superior product. Minnesota, likewise, can find extreme satisfaction in the expansion of its tourist industry, and can congratulate itself that this industry appears very securely foundationed.

The causes for this expansion are not obscure nor difficult to understand. Minnesota has developed as a tourist state in recent years because organized selling efforts on behalf of its vacation resources have been gradually replacing the spirit of passivity which once marked our attitude toward a potentially great industry. If some way could be devised to show it, the upward tourist curve would probably be found to follow the upward organized selling curve with surprisingly fidelity. An improved highway system has facilitated the tasks of salesmanship, but as a general thing the product which the state has to sell today is no more and no less meritorious than it was 10 years ago. We have merely begun to realize, what Florida and California realized before us, that this is a day of organization, of advertising, of co-operative selling.

Minnesota does not need to "high pressure" the nation into accepting it as a summer playground with few equals, but much progress may still be made in the way of dignified and vigorous salesmanship. Minneapolis is taking a step in this direction with the revival of the "hanging garden" idea; each community in the state may profitably advertise itself, directly or indirectly, as a unit in the scheme of a vacation paradise. With state-wide organizations co-ordinating these efforts, it is not difficult to foresee a continued spectacular expansion of an industry whose turnover, in 1927, exceeded $80,000,000. The chief need is to realize that no industry—tourist or otherwise—can progress without a scientific plan of salesmanship. Fortunately Minnesota has begun to see that a judicious tooting of its tourist trumpet is well worth while.

CHICAGO'S CLEANUP

THAT the recent primary election in Chicago resulted in a cleanup of the city and that there was considerable danger connected with the housecleaning is noted in an editorial of the Chicago Tribune, which in part says:

"Any one who saw the thugs and killers of the criminal world and the creatures of vice come out into the open Tuesday (April 10) at the polling places or patrol the streets in cars with guns knows that the danger was not theoretical or rhetorical. The stake was enormous. The plunder was so rich that it invited any desperate act to lay hands on it.

"The question was whether in this primary election there would be a repetition in results of the previous campaigns in which a strange blindness or perversity of opinion would protect the most dangerous combination of politics and crime which ever threatened an American state. It seemed incredible that such could be the case, but what was there in experience to create real confidence that it would not be?

"It may be confessed now that The Tribune undertook this renewal of its fight against this heretofore successful alliance with the prospects of having to protect its own personnel if the people gave another vote of confidence in the combination which controlled police, pardoning, and prosecuting authority. There was no protection for any citizen in that case who exposed the villainies of Illinois and Chicago politics or who opposed them.

"Government for the guaranty of rights, the protection of life, and public security would have disappeared. Opposition would have been handled with machine gun fire and bombs. A disclosure of rascality would have been followed by an explosion at the front door. Political opposition would have been quieted with sawed off shotguns. Reputable citizens would have been slugged at the polls.

"It was against this that the voters arose in a storm of indignation, in a return to old-time savvy in voting, in protection of themselves and their institutions."

AUXILIARY ROADS GETTING FAIR DEAL

MATT KOLL of Cass Lake, in a letter to the Hackensack Independent, gives an illustration how the auxiliary roads are benefited by the present laws. Cass county paid into the one mill state highway road and bridge fund $6,000, and gets back in the division $19,000, all to be used on its state aid roads. In addition the trunk highway system has taken over 170 miles of the most traveled roads in that county, which are maintained without a cent of cost to the taxpayers of Cass county.

Before the adoption of the trunk highway system about 80 per cent of the tax money was expended on these 170 miles of roads. This condition is duplicated in every small county in the state, about 80 of the 87 getting more back than they pay into the state tax. Isn't there something wrong with the oft asserted claim that the auxiliary roads are not getting a fair deal in road making and maintaining?—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

SYNOPSIS

A note supposedly written by his missing brother, Dick, lures Pa-trolman Danny Malone from his beat while another raid is made on the Alfred Dayton silk warehouses. Danny is discharged from the force in disgrace. Jimmy Wells, a newspaper reporter, suggests to Mary Allen, Danny's sweetheart, that she accompany Alfred Dayton, Jr., her employer, to a cabaret in the hope of obtaining information from him. Both suspect Dayton of being implicated in the thefts. In the meantime Danny has taken a job as driver with a trucking firm used by the bandits and is delivering whisky to the P-d M night club when he sees Mary stagger out of the door. She calls a taxi and hurries home. Dayton's mention of the name of Bull Savage, gang leader, having proved her suspicions.

Bull rented this warehouse in the usual manner and had the agent understand that it was awaiting a shipment of Cuban sugar. Then he had it cleaned out and arranged so that the silk could be easily transferred when the time came. Just at present the police were too active, and Sammy the Fence, who handled that end of the business, refused to risk a shipment until the cops were thinking of something else.

There wasn't as much noise in this place as there had been at the old haunt on Snell. To start with the gang weren't sure whether and Dick raised again. Bull gave him a dirty look then raised. This time Dick saw him. Not because he was afraid of being beaten but because he felt it was foolish to ask for trouble with Bull.

Savage looked at his cards for the first time and found he had drawn a low flush. He spread it on the table and started to rake in the pot. Then Dick threw down his four aces and Bull saw red.

"You dirty yellow little cheat," he yelled, then knowing that even he would have to back up that kind of a statement. "I discarded one of those aces."

"Like hell you did," shouted Dick, made bold by the righteousness of his cause.

Bull sprang to his feet and swept the table into one corner of the building. Then without giving the kid or any of the gang a chance to know what he intended, he smashed his fist into Dick's face.

The boy groaned and went down in a moaning little heap. Several of the gangsters who weren't members of the inner circle expressed their disapproval of the act, none of them cared to back it, however, when Bull turned snarling on the crowd with Sparky, hand in his pocket, leaning behind him.

"I'm boss here . . . don't nobody forget it either."

Then stirring the prostrate form of Dick with his foot he looked down at his bleeding lips. The boy opened his eyes and as he saw the ugly face above him, they lighted with a look of hate and anger that daunted even Bull. So much the cops might not break in on them any moment and more than that even, they wondered what their leader's plans were going to be.

"I'm boss here . . . don't nobody forget it either."

None of them made claims to any degree of cleverness, yet the dullest of them saw that Bull was almost through in New York. His next move was to leave, taking with him the spoils from four perfect raids.

It was this moment of disorganization that every gangster fears. For a few days they have no leader, no one to turn to for orders and advice. The result is that they invariably manage to talk to someone who in turn hands the desired information to the police and those members who have not been lucky enough to get out of New York are usually captured.

Bull Savage had one other worry. In order to have every possible resource at his command, he had gathered the whole gang together and was keeping them in the warehouse. A kitchen had been set up in the cellar and the provisions were brought in from Brooklyn early each morning. No one was allowed outside the building except Dick and himself. As a rule Dick was sent out for anything that was needed and after the first two or three times, Bull gave up following him.

I knew perfectly well that Dick hated him and would get back at him should the chance arrive, but he grew reasonably certain that Dick did not intend to appeal to the police for aid. In Bull's way of thinking this was the only chance he had, so he dismissed the possibility of trouble from his mind and gave his whole attention to the matter of reacquiring the money he had shared with the gang.

The poker games were the only recreation and the stakes were growing higher as the game began to lose its flavor. Bull invariably won, but after him Dick was the heaviest winner. He was by far the brainiest player in the crowd and seemed also to be the luckiest.

It was this poker luck that led up to the last outbreak with Bull. This particular game had started about ten o'clock in the morning and had continued until late in the afternoon. The stakes were fifty and a dollar and by five o'clock Dick was ahead about five hundred dollars. Bull was even and the rest were losing to Dick.

Bull decided that his should be the last deal. Knowing his tactics three men dropped. Dick stayed and bought two cards. Sparky also drew one, while the other man drew three and smiled at Bull as he did so. This last one threw his cards in after a look.

Bull picked up his cards and bet a dollar without looking at them. Sparky bought his card and raised a dollar. Dick drew the fourth ace and a three so he raised another dollar.

so in fact that he felt impelled to do something that would cow the boy before there should be open rebellion. Back in Snell street that would have been a simple thing, but here, with fifty men irked by lack of something to do, the slightest friction might start a fire that would be beyond his control.

"Maybe that'll learn you," he snarled.

"It's learned me and someday you'll find out what," Dick's lips almost refused to work, but the message was glaring in his eyes.

"You little runt," went on the leader, "keep out of these games from now on. They're a bunch of guns and a pair of sprinklers back there that need cleaning, snap into it and get 'em mounted. Maybe we'll have a chance to show the cops they ain't the only ones that work a machine gun."

Slowly Dick struggled to his feet aided by a kick from Bull. Let's hours, drink and little exercise had made somewhat of a weakling of him and Bull's punishment made him confine his thoughts to just that. As he left, Bull turned to Sparky.

"Go over with him, Sparky, see that there ain't no bullets in any of them guns."

As the two moved away someone knocked on the door of the building. Instantly the crowd turned towards the door, one or two of them even going so far as to draw their guns. The rest kept their hands close to their pockets and moved into the shadows.

A wiry little Jew moved to the door and opened it an inch or so, then turned back to the gang.

"Okay fellows. It's the boss."

The door opened and young Dayton walked in. As he saw him Bull swallowed an oath or so and maneuvered him into the further corner of the building. As they did so the door again opened, this member having his own key, and Sammy the Fence came in. The three adjourned to the darkest corner of the place and Dayton quickly came to his point.

"When am I going to get my dough?" he asked.

"Soon as we've got any to give," replied Bull, "we can't take this stuff out and peddle it like bananas. You gotta wait like the rest of us an' when Sammy gets rid of it you'll get your dough."

"What do you mean, when he gets rid of it?" Dayton was too mad and a dollar and by five o'clock Dick was ahead about five hundred dollars. Bull was even and the rest were losing to Dick.

Bull wasn't ready to quarrel with him yet, so he tried to placate him.

"What the hell buddy, you an' I ain't got nothin' to say on this. Sammy's the pay-off guy and while the cops are on the job like they are now he's not goin' to touch it."

"Well I've got to have some money, and have it today."

"Well, what yer goin' to do about it," answered Bull, briefly. "I ain't got it. Sammy's the guy you want to see."

Get your dollar's worth

Grandmother reads the latest market prices—"Lands sakes alive!" she exclaims, "why, when I was young we didn't have to pay half so much." Yes, in "the good old days" milk sold at five cents a quart, potatoes at forty cents a bushel, sugar twenty-five pounds for a dollar, and so on. And, in "the good old days" a laborer was paid a dollar a day or possibly a dollar and a quarter. But who wants to go back to "the good old days"? Not you—not me.

Prices are higher now, but wages are higher too. You pay more, but the goods you buy are of better material, they are better made, they last longer. Even foodstuffs are better. Inspection and extra care insure their quality.

The dollar can still buy a dollar's worth. Read the advertising in the newspapers and you will find that they will help your dollars go a long way. Advertising tells you where you can get full value for your money. The young housewife of today shops even more intelligently than "grandma," for the advertisements are her guides, they make her a competent judge of values.

We have merely begun to realize, what Florida and California realized before us, that this is a day of organization, of advertising, of co-operative selling.

Minnesota does not need to "high pressure" the nation into accepting it as a summer playground with few equals, but much progress may still be made in the way of dignified and vigorous salesmanship. Minneapolis is taking a step in this direction with the revival of the "hanging garden" idea; each community in the state may profitably advertise itself, directly or indirectly, as a unit in the scheme of a vacation paradise. With state-wide organizations co-ordinating these efforts, it is not difficult to foresee a continued spectacular expansion of an industry whose turnover, in 1927, exceeded $80,000,000. The chief need is to realize that no industry—tourist or otherwise—can progress without a scientific plan of salesmanship. Fortunately Minnesota has begun to see that a judicious tooting of its tourist trumpet is well worth while.

CHICAGO'S CLEANUP

THAT the recent primary election in Chicago resulted in a cleanup of the city and that there was considerable danger connected with the housecleaning is noted in an editorial of the Chicago Tribune, which in part says:

"Any one who saw the thugs and killers of the criminal world and the creatures of vice come out into the open Tuesday (April 10) at the polling places or patrol the streets in cars with guns knows that the danger was not theoretical or rhetorical. The stake was enormous. The plunder was so rich that it invited any desperate act to lay hands on it.

"The question was whether in this primary election there would be a repetition in results of the previous campaigns in which a strange blindness or perversity of opinion would protect the most dangerous combination of politics and crime which ever threatened an American state. It seemed incredible that such could be the case, but what was there in experience to create real confidence that it would not be?

"It may be confessed now that The Tribune undertook this renewal of its fight against this heretofore successful alliance with the prospects of having to protect its own personnel if the people gave another vote of confidence in the combination which controlled police, pardoning, and prosecuting authority. There was no protection for any citizen in that case who exposed the villainies of Illinois and Chicago politics or who opposed them.

"Government for the guaranty of rights, the protection of life, and public security would have disappeared. Opposition would have been handled with machine gun fire and bombs. A disclosure of rascality would have been followed by an explosion at the front door. Political opposition would have been quieted with sawed off shotguns. Reputable citizens would have been slugged at the polls.

"It was against this that the voters arose in a storm of indignation, in a return to old-time savvy in voting, in protection of themselves and their institutions."

AUXILIARY ROADS GETTING FAIR DEAL

MATT KOLL of Cass Lake, in a letter to the Hackensack Independent, gives an illustration how the auxiliary roads are benefited by the present laws. Cass county paid into the one mill state highway road and bridge fund $6,000, and gets back in the division $19,000, all to be used on its state aid roads. In addition the trunk highway system has taken over 170 miles of the most traveled roads in that county, which are maintained without a cent of cost to the taxpayers of Cass county.

Before the adoption of the trunk highway system about 80 per cent of the tax money was expended on these 170 miles of roads. This condition is duplicated in every small county in the state, about 80 of the 87 getting more back than they pay into the state tax. Isn't there something wrong with the oft asserted claim that the auxiliary roads are not getting a fair deal in road making and maintaining?—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

PETTY THIEVING OF YOUNGSTERS

THE DISPATCH published yesterday a record of petty thieving by juveniles which is culminating by action in the juvenile court. The police are to be commended for tracking down this thievery and it is hoped some action can be taken to impress young people that such law breaking must cease.

The record of petty thieving filled almost a column of small type.

SYNOPSIS

A note supposedly written by his missing brother, Dicky, lures Pa-trolman Danny Malone from his beat while another raid is made on the Alfred Dayton silk warehouses. Danny is discharged from the force in disgrace. Jimmy Wells, a newspaper reporter, suggests to Mary Allen, Danny's sweetheart, that she accompany Alfred Dayton, Jr., her employer, to a cabaret in the hope of obtaining information from him. Both suspect Dayton of being implicated in the thefts. In the meantime Danny has taken a job as driver with a trucking firm used by the bandits and is delivering whisky to the P-d Mill night club when he sees Mary stagger out of the door. She calls a taxi and hurries home, Dayton's mention of the name of Bull Savage, gang leader, having proved her suspicions.

Bull rented this warehouse in the usual manner and had the agent understand that it was awaiting a shipment of Cuban sugar. Then he had it cleaned out and arranged so that the silk could be easily transferred when the time came. Just at present the police were too active, and Sammie the Fence, who handled that end of the business refused to risk a shipment until the cops were thinking of something else.

There wasn't as much noise in this place as there had been at the old haunt on Snell. To start with the gang weren't sure whether and Dick raised again. Bull gave him a dirty look then raised. This time Dick saw him. Not because he was afraid of being beaten but because he felt it was foolish to ask for trouble with Bull.

"Like hell you did," he shouted Dick, made bold by the righteousness of his cause.

Bull sprang to his feet and swept the table into one corner of the building. Then without giving the kid or any of the gang a chance to know what he intended, he smashed his fist into Dick's face.

The boy groaned and went down in moaning little heap. Several of the gangsters who weren't members of the inner circle expressed their disapproval of the act, none of them cared to back it, however, when Bull turned snarling on the crowd with Sparky, hand in his pocket, leaning behind him. "I'm boss here . . . don't nobody forget it either."

Then stirring the prostrate form of Dick with his foot he looked down at his bleeding lips. The boy opened his eyes and as he saw the ugly face above him, they lighted with a look of hate and anger that daunted even Bull. So much the cops might not break in on them any moment and more than that even, they wondered what their leader's plans were going to be.

"I'm boss here . . . don't forget it, either."

None of them made claims to any degree of cleverness, yet the dullness of them saw that Bull was almost through in New York. His next move was to leave, taking with him the spoils from four perfect raids.

It was this moment of disorganization that every gangster fears. For a few days they have no leader, no one to turn to for orders and advice. The result is that they invariably manage to talk to someone who in turn hands the desired information to the police and those members who have not been lucky enough to get out of New York are usually captured.

Bull Savage had one other worry. In order to have every possible resource at his command, he had gathered the whole gang together and was keeping them in the warehouse. A kitchen had been set up in the cellar and the provisions were brought in from Brooklyn early each morning. No one was allowed outside the building except Dick and himself. As a rule Dick was sent out for anything that was needed and after the first two or three times, Bull gave up following him.

He knew perfectly well that Dick hated him and would get back at him should the chance arrive, but he grew reasonably certain that Dick did not intend to appeal to the police for aid. In Bull's way of thinking this was the only chance he had, so he dismissed the possibility of trouble from his mind and gave his whole attention to the matter of reacquiring the money he had shared with the gang.

The poker games were the only recreation and the stakes were growing higher as the game began to lose its flavor. Bull invariably won, but after him Dick was the heaviest winner. He was by far the brainiest player in the crowd and seemed also to be the luckiest.

It was this poker luck that led up to the last outbreak with Bull. This particular game had started about ten o'clock in the morning and had continued until late in the afternoon. The stakes were fifty and a dollar and by five o'clock Dick was ahead about five hundred dollars. Bull was even and the rest were losing to Dick.

Bull decided that his should be the last deal. Knowing his tactics three men dropped. Dick stayed and bought two cards, Sparky also drew one, while the other man drew three and smiled at Bull as he did so. This last one threw his cards in after a look.

Bull picked up his cards and bet a dollar without looking at them. Sparky bought his card and raised a dollar. Dick drew the fourth ace and a three so he raised another dollar.

so in fact that he felt impelled to do something that would cow the boy before there should be open rebellion. Back in Snell street that would have been a simple thing, but here, with fifty men irked by lack of something to do, the slightest friction might start a fire that would be beyond his control.

"Maybe that'll learn you," he snarled.

"It's learned me and someday you'll find out what," Dick's lips almost refused to work, but the message was glaring in his eyes.

"You little runt," went on the leader, "keep out of these games from now on. They're a bunch of rums and a pair of sprinklers back there that need cleaning, snap into it and get 'em mounted. Maybe we'll have a chance to show the cops they ain't the only ones that work a machine gun."

Slowly Dick struggled to his feet aided by a kick from Bull. Let's hours, drink and little exercise had made somewhat of a weakness of him and Bull's punishment made him confine his thoughts to just that. As he left, Bull turned to Sparky.

"Go over with him, Sparky, see that there ain't no bullets in any of them guns."

As the two moved away someone knocked on the door of the building. Instantly the crowd turned towards the door, one or two of them even going so far as to draw their guns. The rest kept their hands close to their pockets and moved into the shadows.

A wiry little fellow moved to the door and opened it an inch or so, then turned back to the gang.

"Okay fellows. It's the boss."

The door opened and young Dayton walked in. As he saw him Bull swallowed an oath or so and maneuvered him into the further corner of the building. As they did so the door again opened, this member having his own key, and Sammie the Fence came in. The three adjourned to the darkest corner of the place and Dayton quickly came to his point.

"When am I going to get my dough?" he asked.

"Soon as we've got you to give," replied Bull, "we can't take this stuff out and peddle it like bananas. You gotta wait like the rest of us an' when Sammie gets rid of it you'll get your dough."

"What do you mean, when he gets rid of it," Dayton was too mad to remember how dangerous were the men he was dealing with. "Do you think I'm handing $100,000 over to you and then wait two weeks for payment?"

Bull wasn't ready to quarrel with him yet, so he tried to placate him.

"What the hell buddy, you an' I ain't got nothing to say on the man Sammie's the pay-off guy and while the cops are on the job like they are now he's not goin' to touch it."

"Well I've got to have some money, and have it today."

"Well, what yer goin' to do about it," answered Bull, briefly. "I ain't got it. Sammie's the guy you want to see."

Get your dollar's worth

Grandmother reads the latest market prices—"Lands sakes alive!" she exclaims, "why, when I was young we didn't have to pay half so much." Yes, in "the good old days" milk sold at five cents a quart, potatoes at forty cents a bushel, sugar twenty-five pounds for a dollar, and so on. And, in "the good old days" a laborer was paid a dollar a day or possibly a dollar and a quarter. But who wants to go back to "the good old days"? Not you—not me.

Prices are higher now, but wages are higher too. You pay more, but the goods you buy are of better material, they are better made, they last longer. Even foodstuffs are better. Inspection and extra care insure their quality.

The dollar can still buy a dollar's worth. Read the advertising in the newspapers and you will find that they will help your dollars go a long way. Advertising tells you where you can get full value for your money. The young housewife of today shops even more intelligently than "grandma," for the advertisements are her guides, they make her a competent judge of values.

HAGEN AND HELEN WILLS TO INVADE THE BRITISH ISLES

SWASH-BUCKLER OF LINKS, QUEEN OF THE COURTS

FORM VANGUARD OF THIS NATION'S SPORT ARMY FOR SEASON

TO UNDERTAKE MOST PRETENTIOUS FOREIGN CAMPAIGN SINCE THE WAR

New York, April 16. — Helen Wills yesterday defeated Elmer Griffin, former California star and a member of the first ten in the metropolitan district, 2-6, 10-8, 6-4, in a practice match at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills.

The game lasted almost two hours and Miss Wills' game improved with each set. She showed need of practice on her back hand.

She will practice again today, probably playing Ed Chandler, Californian, who tried out for the Davis cup team.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 16. — America's invasion of Europe and the British Isles technically begins this week when Walter Hagen, the swash-buckler of the links, and Helen Wills, the queen of the courts, leave for foreign shores.

"The Haig" and Miss Wills form the vanguard of this nation's sport army which will undertake this summer the most pretentious foreign campaign since the war.

The three big events of the amateur sport world — the Olympic games, the Wightman cup matches and the Davis cup final — will take place on the continent this summer and the United States has high hopes of making a clean sweep.

The United States will send 263 athletes to the IX Olympiad at Amsterdam in July and August and prospects are favorable for another American triumph.

Led by Helen Wills, the United States should retain possession of the Wightman cup in the annual match with England. Miss Wills' teammates probably will be Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., or Miss Eleanor Goss of New York.

To win back the Davis cup lost to France last year, the United States faces a stupendous task which may prove a trifle too difficult for the young American team this year. America, however, has a splendid chance to fight its way to the challenge round and meet France in the Davis cup final at Paris July 27, 28 and 29.

Hagen and Miss Wills sail for Europe on the Aquitania Wednesday night. Miss Wills will be accompanied by her mother and Miss Penelope Anderson, the seventh ranking women's player, who will join Helen in the doubles.

Hagen will compete in the British Open Golf Championship at Sandwick and will engage in special matches with Archie Compston and Aubrey Boomer in England and France.

After a quiet winter, in which he spent most of his time on the west coast taking a fling at the movies, Hagen is all ready for a strenuous summer of golf. Hagen's first trip to England was in 1920. Two years later he won the British Open championship. He finished second in 1923 and won again in 1924.

Holder of both the United States and Wimbledon championships, Miss Wills plans to defend her laurels against all comers abroad.

In previous trips to Europe, Miss Wills divided her time between tennis and art, but she says she is going abroad this year to play tennis entirely.

"Little Miss Poker Face" has been practicing regularly throughout the winter and says she feels capable of playing the best tennis of her career. "I expect Eileen Bennett and Betty Nulhall of England, and Senorita D'Alvarez of Spain to give me the most serious opposition abroad," she said.

Betty Nulhall, the 17-year-old English girl who lost to Miss Wills in the finals of the national championship here last year, has developed an overhand service and her English admirers predict she will prove even a better player this year than she was in 1927.

After a short rest in Paris, Miss Wills and Miss Anderson will go to Amsterdam for a team match with Miss Kea Bodman and other Dutch stars. They will return to Paris for a team match with France and then engage in the French championships at Autenil. They will compete in the Wightman cup matches in England June 15 and 16 and the English championships at Wimbledon.

Yesterday's Hero—George Grant. His double in the ninth sent Wright home with the run which enabled the Pittsburgh Pirates to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 2, and gave the Pirates their first victory of the 1928 baseball season. Pittsburgh has lost three games while winning one and is next to last with a percentage of .250.

Lefty O'Doul and Andy Cohen, rookie regulars, led the New York Giants to an 8 to 1 victory over the Phillies. The Giants hold first place in the National League with three victories and no defeats. O'Doul and Cohen each made three hits including home runs.

The Boston Braves continued their losing streak, dropping the third straight to the Brooklyn Robins. Bill Clark, young southpaw from Terre Haute, Ind., held the Braves to six hits and the Robins won, 3 to 2.

Frankie Frisch, with a single, triple and home run, played the major role in the St. Louis Cardinals' 4 to 3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Sam Gray held the Chicago White Sox to six hits and the St. Louis Browns won their fourth straight game. Schulte led the Browns' attack with a double and two singles.

Haskell Billings pitched the Detroit Tigers to their first win of the season over the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 2. Billings allowed only five hits, scored two runs himself and made two hits in two times at bat.

Fred Marberry won his second game of the season and Goose Goslin starred in the Washington Senators' 6 to 5 win over the Red Sox. Goslin hit a homer with two on and made a circus catch of Hofmann's long drive.

The New York Yankees beat Baltimore, 5 to 2, and the Philadelphia Athletics won from Newark, 9 to 7, in exhibition games. Ruth, playing first base, hit a home run.

FORMER BUSINESS ASSOCIATES AND PALS ARE AT OUTS

TRIAL MAY NOT GET UNDER WAY UNTIL LATTER PART OF WEEK

KEARNS SUING DEMPSEY FOR $701,026.60 UNDER ALLEGED CONTRACT

New York, April 16. — (UP) — The legal battle between Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, former pals and business associates, was scheduled to begin in federal court here today.

The trial, however, may not get under way until the latter part of the week because Judge John C. Knox is at present occupied with another case.

Kearns is suing Dempsey for $701,026.60 which the former manager of "the Manassa Mauler" claims is due him under a contract signed by Dempsey and held by Kearns. The contract was drawn up September 23, 1923, and provided for Kearns to do Dempsey's bidding through August 3, 1926, for which Kearns was to receive one-third of Dempsey's earnings.

The original sum named in the suit was $333,333.33, but Kearns had the amount raised after the first hearing at Newark, N. J., last November was declared no trial.

Rickard, Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, Chairman James A. Farley of the New York athletic commission, and Commissioner William Muldoon are among those called as witnesses.

New York, April 16. — The Jack Kearns-Jack Dempsey suit which is scheduled to go on trial in federal court here today, was postponed until Wednesday.

RECOMMEND GENERAL REVISION OF FREIGHT RATES BY I. C. C.

Washington, April 16. — (UP) — A general revision of class freight rates in eastern territory was recommended to the interstate commerce commission today by Examiner Howard Hosmer.

Twenty-two classes of freight rates are prescribed in Hosmer's report and a new scale of rates for each class is proposed. In some cases the new rates are above existing rates, and in others they are below present charges.

First class rates in the report are based on a mileage scale beginning at 30 cents a hundred pounds for the first five miles and running up to $1.56 for 900 miles. Second class rates would be 85 per cent of first class; third class would be 70 per cent; fourth class 50 per cent; fifth class 35 per cent and sixth class 30 per cent.

The first class rates proposed for the eastern territory are about 73 per cent of those previously prescribed for southern territory.

Increases in rates on fruits, vegetables and dairy products would be prohibited.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The presence of Jack Dempsey in New York, ostensibly for the sole purpose of defending himself in a law suit, has resulted in daily rumors of the ex-heavyweight champion's impending return to the ring.

Dempsey is reported to be holding mysterious conferences with this or that manager, to be working out secretly and to be talking with Tex Rickard in the wee sma' hours for the purpose of arranging such details as concern another battle with Gene Tunney.

There is one good reason for believing that Dempsey and Rickard may not have said their last word regarding Jack's retirement.

That reason is the scheduled Heene-Tunney fight. Tex and Gene and Jack are smart enough to figure that if a Dempsey-Tunney fight already were announced as for next September, interest in the affair between the champion and the New Zealander would be, to say the least, secondary.

Folks who can only afford to splurge on a heavyweight championship affair once a year would pass up the Heene scrap as nothing more than an obvious "tune-up" bout for Tunney.

With a Dempsey-Tunney battle in prospect, the July engagement of Tom and Gene would have all the elements of excitement of a gymnasium workout. As far as anyone knows at present, the Heene-Tunney fight is to be the only one in which the champion will engage this year. Tex and Gene have made positive announcement to that effect, and Dempsey has reiterated his intention to retire.

It is the intention of the promoter and the champion to concentrate upon the Heene affair, to build the bout with the good-natured blacksmith into a grudge fight of international proportions which may send the American fleet to blockade Auckland harbor at any moment and bring the Anzacs to the Pacific seaboard in armed landing parties.

The idea of grizzled old Tom Heene in a grudge fight is as ludicrous as that of the New Zealander in pink fleshings in the role of Harlequin.

It takes Dempsey to bring to bear the necessary element of hate. Jack still has it.

Heene is due here soon to start fight training for his big shot at the championship. The chances are they will feed Tom raw meat before the ship reporters meet him at Quarantine. He will come steaming in announcing all the unpleasant things Bernard Mortimer can think of for him to announce and breathing fire.

Already the Rickard troop of trained seals has begun to think up reasons why Heene might win this light next July. They talk now about Tom's right hand, pointing out that it is a terrible weapon of destruction. Terrible is the right word, if properly applied. Heene cannot be ballyhooed as a knock-out artist without arousing mild protest of one who has seen him in all but one of his American starts.

A glance at the record shows that the New Zealander has knocked out just one man in this country, the glass-jawed James Maloney. He is credited with a knockout victory over Charley Anderson, the trial darkey, but Anderson folded up as much from distaste for work as from punishment.

Knocking out Maloney, the chubby Hub fishmonger, is Heene's best effort in that direction, but give the trained seals a month now and they will have the New Zealander bowling over the Statue of Liberty with one mighty belt.

Gene Tunney, who never has been knocked out, will be picked as likely prey for the awkward Antipodean, just as Jack Dempsey in his prime was picked as the victim of Georges Georges Carpentier. For of such stuff are the fight records made.

HAGEN AND HELEN WILLS TO INVADE THE BRITISH ISLES

SWASH-BUCKLER OF LINKS, QUEEN OF THE COURTS

FORM VANGUARD OF THIS NATION'S SPORT ARMY FOR SEASON

TO UNDERTAKE MOST PRETENTIOUS FOREIGN CAMPAIGN SINCE THE WAR

New York, April 16. — Helen Wills yesterday defeated Elmer Griffin, former California star and a member of the first ten in the metropolitan district, 2-6, 10-8, 6-4, in a practice match at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills.

The game lasted almost two hours and Miss Wills' game improved with each set. She showed need of practice on her back hand.

She will practice again today, probably playing Ed Chandler, Californian, who tried out for the Davis cup team.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, April 16. — America's invasion of Europe and the British Isles technically begins this week when Walter Hagen, the swash-buckler of the links, and Helen Wills, the queen of the courts, leave for foreign shores.

"The Haig" and Miss Wills form the vanguard of this nation's sport army which will undertake this summer the most pretentious foreign campaign since the war.

The three big events of the amateur sport world — the Olympic games, the Wightman cup matches and the Davis cup final — will take place on the continent this summer and the United States has high hopes of making a clean sweep.

The United States will send 263 athletes to the IX Olympiad at Amsterdam in July and August and prospects are favorable for another American triumph.

Led by Helen Wills, the United States should retain possession of the Wightman cup in the annual match with England. Miss Wills' teammates probably will be Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., or Miss Eleanor Goss of New York.

To win back the Davis cup lost to France last year, the United States faces a stupendous task which may prove a trifle too difficult for the young American team this year. America, however, has a splendid chance to fight its way to the challenge round and meet France in the Davis cup final at Paris July 27, 28 and 29.

Hagen and Miss Wills sail for Europe on the Aquitania Wednesday night. Miss Wills will be accompanied by her mother and Miss Penelope Anderson, the seventh ranking women's player, who will join Helen in the doubles.

Hagen will compete in the British Open Golf Championship at Sandwich and will engage in special matches with Archie Compston and Aubrey Boomer in England and France.

After a quiet winter, in which he spent most of his time on the west coast taking a fling at the movies, Hagen is all ready for a strenuous summer of golf. Hagen's first trip to England was in 1926. Two years later he won the British Open championship. He finished second in 1923 and won again in 1924.

Holder of both the United States and Wimbledon championships, Miss Wills plans to defend her laurels against all comers abroad.

In previous trips to Europe, Miss Wills divided her time between tennis and art, but she says she is going abroad this year to play tennis entirely.

"Little Miss Poker Face" has been practicing regularly throughout the winter and says she feels capable of playing the best tennis of her career. "I expect Eileen Bennett and Betty Nulhall of England, and Senorita D'Alvarez of Spain to give me the most serious opposition abroad," she said.

Betty Nulhall, the 17-year-old English girl who lost to Miss Wills in the finals of the national championship here last year, has developed an overhand service and her English admirers predict she will prove even a better player this year than she was in 1927.

After a short rest in Paris, Miss Wills and Miss Anderson will go to Amsterdam for a team match with Miss Kea Bouman and other Dutch stars. They will return to Paris for a team match with France and then engage in the French championships at Auteuil. They will compete in the Wightman cup matches in England June 15 and 16 and the English championships at Wimbledon starting June 25.

Yesterday's Hero — George Grant. His double in the ninth sent Wright home with the run which enabled the Pittsburgh Pirates to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 2, and gave the Pirates their first victory of the 1928 baseball season. Pittsburgh has lost three games while winning one and is next to last with a percentage of .250.

Lefty O'Doul and Andy Cohen, rookie regulars, led the New York Giants to an 8 to 1 victory over the Phillies. The Giants hold first place in the National League with three victories and no defeats. O'Doul and Cohen each made three hits including home runs.

The Boston Braves continued their losing streak, dropping the third straight to the Brooklyn Robins. Bill Clark, young southpaw from Terre Haute, Ind., held the Braves to six hits and the Robins won, 3 to 2.

Frankie Frisch, with a single, triple and home run, played the major role in the St. Louis Cardinals' 4 to 3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

FORMER BUSINESS ASSOCIATES AND PALS ARE AT OUTS

TRIAL MAY NOT GET UNDER WAY UNTIL LATTER PART OF WEEK

KEARNS SUING DEMPSEY FOR $701,026.60 UNDER ALLEGED CONTRACT

New York, April 16. — (UP) — The legal battle between Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, former pals and business associates, was scheduled to begin in federal court here today.

The trial, however, may not get under way until the latter part of the week because Judge John C. Knox is at present occupied with another case.

Kearns is suing Dempsey for $701,026.60 which the former manager of "the Manassa Mauler" claims is due him under a contract signed by Dempsey and held by Kearns. The contract was drawn up September 23, 1923, and provided for Kearns to do Dempsey's bidding through August 3, 1926, for which Kearns was to receive one-third of Dempsey's earnings.

The original sum named in the suit was $333,333.33, but Kearns had the amount raised after the first hearing at Newark, N. J., last November was declared no trial.

Rickard, Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, Chairman James A. Farley of the New York athletic commissioner, and Commissioner William Muldoon are among those called as witnesses.

New York, April 16. — The Jack Kearns-Jack Dempsey suit which is scheduled to go on trial in federal court here today, was postponed until Wednesday.

RECOMMEND GENERAL REVISION OF FREIGHT RATES BY I. C. C.

Washington, April 16. — (UP) — A general revision of class freight rates in eastern territory was recommended to the interstate commerce commission today by Examiner Howard Hosmer.

Twenty-two classes of freight rates are prescribed in Hosmer's report and a new scale of rates for each class is proposed. In some cases the new rates are above existing rates, and in others they are below present charges.

First class rates in the report are based on a mileage scale beginning at 30 cents a hundred pounds for the first five miles and running up to $1.56 for 900 miles. Second class rates would be 85 per cent of first class; third class would be 70 per cent; fourth class 50 per cent; fifth class 35 per cent and sixth class 30 per cent.

The first class rates proposed for the eastern territory are about 73 per cent of those previously prescribed for southern territory.

Increases in rates on fruits, vegetables and dairy products would be prohibited.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The presence of Jack Dempsey in New York, ostensibly for the sole purpose of defending himself in a law suit, has resulted in daily rumors of the ex-heavyweight champion's impending return to the ring.

Dempsey is reported to be holding mysterious conferences with this or that manager, to be working out secretly and to be talking with Tex Rickard in the wee sma' hours for the purpose of arranging such details as concern another battle with Gene Tunney.

There is one good reason for believing that Dempsey and Rickard may not have said their last word regarding Jack's retirement.

That reason is the scheduled Heene-Tunney fight. Tex and Gene and Jack are smart enough to figure that if a Dempsey-Tunney fight already were announced as for next September, interest in the affair between the champion and the New Zealander would be, to say the least, secondary.

Folks who can only afford to splurge on a heavyweight championship affair once a year would pass up the Heene scrap as nothing more than an obvious "tune-up" bout for Tunney.

With a Dempsey-Tunney battle in prospect, the July engagement of Tom and Gene would have all the elements of excitement of a gymnasium workout.

As far as anyone knows at present, the Heene-Tunney fight is to be the only one in which the champion will engage this year. Tex and Gene have made positive announcement to that effect, and Dempsey has reiterated his intention to retire.

It is the intention of the promoter and the champion to concentrate upon the Heene affair, to build the bout with the good-natured blacksmith into a grudge fight of international proportions which may send the American fleet to blockade Auckland harbor at any moment and bring the Anzacs to the Pacific seaboard in armed landing parties.

The idea of grizzled old Tom Heene in a grudge fight is as ludicrous as that of the New Zealander in pink fleshings in the role of Harlequin.

It takes Dempsey to bring to bear the necessary element of hate. Jack still has it.

Heene is due here soon to start light training for his big shot at the championship. The chances are they will feed Tom raw meat before the ship reporters meet him at Quarantine. He will come steaming in announcing all the unpleasant things Bernard Mortimer can think of for him to announce and breathing fire.

CZAR, THE GREAT, LOST TO COUNTY

Familiar Russian Wolfhound, Owned by Miss Islay McColl, Dies Yesterday

BEST KNOWN DOG HERE

Attained Fame When Accepted as a Member in B. P. and W. Club

Czar is dead. Owned by Miss Islay McColl, deputy county treasurer but actually treasured by hundreds of people in Crow Wing county, the big white Russian wolfhound, a familiar figure on the streets of Brainerd and within the marble walls of the county seat of justice came to the last of his days here yesterday.

They called him "The Crow Wing County Dog." His life has been one of devotion to Miss McColl and her friends. He has lived a greater life than the majority of the canine species. He has crashed the gates of newspaper publicity in larger city dailies and magazines and columnists have vied with each other in bringing out their noblest thoughts for the dog.

He received widespread fame when he was taken in as a fourteenth member of the Business and Professional Women's club to save the club from organizing with 13 members. It was at that time that Czar's picture graced the Minneapolis Journal's pages in a two column picture attraction, and later a whole page of the national magazine of the B. and P. W. club was devoted to the consternation among the "office cats" when they learned that a dog had become a member.

Czar was a regular attendant at all club meetings and always enjoyed the refreshments. Many non-resident tax payers who had become acquainted with Czar during the summer vacation mentioned him when writing regarding taxes.

That Czar was greatly admired and loved by his mistress is evident by the following verses penned by Miss McColl and published in the magazine "Candy and Soda Profits." He is long, and lithe of limb.

To Czar, My Wolfhound
Ten years have passed over him;
Yet even now, as puppies play,
He'll seize a stick and then away
He'll run, in unfeigned frenzy.

To him I have never lied—
He is faith personified;
Though he does not question why,
Sometimes he will softly sigh,
His calm eyes filled with wonder.

I belong to him as much
As he belongs to me, for such
Devotion my love and sympathy.
(They call him my "whiteshadow.")

When his earth-days have passed by
I'll seek his spirit in the sky.
Perhaps some soft, faint blur I'll see,
Then I'll say: "That must be he,
That nimble, nebulous sun-dog!"

REACTION DUE FROM REALISTIC DRAMA

People Tired of Seeing Characters and Secrets of Underworld on Stage

GARNS INTERPRETS DRAMA

Brainerd Musical Club Delighted by Varied and Highly Artistic Program Saturday

John Seaman Garns and Nadine Louis charmed and delighted their audience last Saturday with a varied and highly artistic program before the Brainerd Musical club.

First, Mr. Garns gave his opinion of Broadway plays in ensemble. In substance, it was to the effect that the realistic drama had run its course in morbidness and sordidness, and a reaction was about due and was forecast by some of this year's plays. He gave a brief sketch of realism from the days of Ibsen. He said that romance had gone so far in the opposite direction that it had little relation to life. This was illustrated by Sardou's "Diplomacy," which had been given in Minneapolis during the week. While it was an interesting piece of fiction, everything was too cleverly arranged, too well-timed—things didn't happen that way in real life. It was because the stage was getting too far away from life, that realism was welcomed. But now the pendulum had swung too far the other way and people were getting fed up with the characters and secrets of the underworld. Even some of the dramatists themselves were becoming disgusted with the sex theme and were beginning to realize that while all of these evils are in life, they are not the whole of life. While life has its seamy side, most moral mortals live, on the whole, a healthy, wholesome, vigorous life. Garbage isn't the usual diet of mankind, even though a few individuals enjoy decayed intellectual food and seem to revel in it. As an illustration of the reaction of the dramatists, he sighted Eugene O'Neill's "Lazarus" which, he declared, had deep spiritual significance.

Leaving the discussion of the drama, Mr. Garns took up the relation of poetry to music, under the title "Where Words Leave off and Music Begins." His thesis was that certain poems or blank verse or even highly emotionalized prose, which naturally swung into rhythm, needed a background of music for their best interpretation. He proceeded to illustrate his point by giving "The Highwayman" for which Mrs. Louis had written a musical setting. This was a highly romantic highwayman, a sort of Robin Hood who came to visit the landlord's daughter at the risk of his life, and the music helped to visualize the flying steed with his dauntless rider, the love scene, and the tragic end of this reckless romance.

"Not Understood" became better understood by means of its impressive musical accompaniment, but "The Fish Are in the Bay" was, perhaps, the number to which the music added most-giving vividness to that call to action to those whose livelihood depends upon a successful catch, and deepening the meaning of the childhood romance with which that call was associated.

Among the humorous numbers, those most thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed were "Love is a Bubble," "Kick Under the Table" and "There Little Girl"—the essence of the last being that however men might criticize woman's garb, and however shocking or ridiculous it might appear to them, they always "fell for them," whether their fashions belonged to the Victorian age or represented the flaming youth of today and that, after all, it was not the garb of the body that mattered but "how the soul was trimmed."

This mere recital of the numbers on this program can give no conception whatever of the artistic quality of Garns' and Mrs. Louis' work. It was too intangible to be described in words, but was wholly delightful and satisfying.

Mr. Garns closed the program with the reading of "Old Baumgartner," by John Luther Long a comedy with a deep tinge of pathos. His delineation of the various characters in this was up to his best standard.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS SOLEMN CEREMONIES

Initiate Large Class Saturday, Followed by Banquet and Program of Talks and Music

DR. GEO. RIBBEL PRESIDES

Officers of Grand Chapter of Minnesota and Other Masonic Dignitaries Present

Saturday was a wonderful day in the realms of local Royal Arch Masonry. One of the largest classes in the history of the chapter was initiated and ceremonies ably exemplified by a degree staff including:

High Priest—Clarence B. Stickney.

King—Harold O. Forsberg.

Scribe—Ralph E. Falconer.

Captain of Host—Chris A. Nelson.

Principal Sojourner—A. O. Tumms.

Royal Arch Captain—M. H. Carlson.

Master Third Veil—Ralph Falconer.

Master Second Veil—James T. Templeton.

Master First Veil—Edward R. Meyer.

Secretary—G. W. Chadbourne.

Treasurer—F. A. Farrar.

Sentinel—Nels A. Jepson.

Marshal—Levi Johnson.

Honored guests were some of the most distinguished dignitaries in Masonry, including many officials of the Grand Chapter of Minnesota.

The banquet was served in the evening in the Masonic rooms by Alpha Chapter No. 23 of the Order of the Eastern Star. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers.

Dr. George A. Ribbel presided as toastmaster at the banquet and Rev. R. J. Long voiced the prayer in the introductory ceremonies.

The musical numbers were given by six members of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

R. R. Gould gave the address of welcome to visitors, candidates and members and praised the tenets of Masonry.

C. B. Stickney, High Priest of Brainerd Chapter, thanked the officers and committee men for their wonderful arrangements and the success attained.

William R. VanHousen of St. Paul, Grand Scribe of the Grand Chapter of Minnesota, said the banquet and ceremonies were the equal of any occasion in Grand Chapter history.

Robert Firth of Duluth, Grand Master of the Third Veil, gathered the large class which had been initiated, and appreciated the royal welcome extended to all.

Mr. Fabian, Captain of the Host, Minnesota Chapter No. 1 of St. Paul, gave a number of fine readings.

W. J. Dutcher, of Duluth, Grand Lecturer of the Grand Chapter of Minnesota, expressed his appreciation of the welcome accorded.

Charles D. McCoy of Duluth, Most Excellent High Priest of the Grand Chapter of Minnesota, gave an account of his stewardship in Masonry and of the fine enthusiasm now permeating all chapters in the jurisdiction.

He presented James Crust, Past High Priest of Brainerd, with a ring and Mr. Crust responded appropriately.

G. F. Mitchell, Past High Priest of Brainerd, and a member of the local advisory board of the DeMolay, told of the growth of the order in general and of the local DeMolays. The Brainerd DeMolays have committed all parts to memory and every Mason is eligible to attend their meetings.

From a council of nine members in 1919, the DeMolays in 1927 numbered 1900 councils and a membership of 375,000.

The banquet program finished, the diners retired to the large hall where the musical program was given and which is reviewed in another column.

CZAR, THE GREAT, LOST TO COUNTY

Familiar Russian Wolfhound, Owned by Miss Islay McColl, Dies Yesterday

BEST KNOWN DOG HERE

Attained Fame When Accepted as a Member in B. P. and W. Club

Czar is dead. Owned by Miss Islay McColl, deputy county treasurer but actually treasured by hundreds of people in Crow Wing county, the big white Russian wolfhound, a familiar figure on the streets of Brainerd and within the marble walls of the county seat of justice came to the last of his days here yesterday.

They called him "The Crow Wing County Dog." His life has been one of devotion to Miss McColl and her friends. He has lived a greater life than the majority of the canine species. He has crashed the gates of newspaper publicity in larger city dailies and magazines and columnists have vied with each other in bringing out their noblest thoughts for the dog.

He received widespread fame when he was taken in as a fourteenth member of the Business and Professional Women's club to save the club from organizing with 13 members. It was at that time that Czar's picture graced the Minneapolis Journal's pages in a two column picture attraction, and later a whole page of the national magazine of the B. and P. W. club was devoted to the consternation among the "office cats" when they learned that a dog had become a member.

Czar was a regular attendant at all club meetings and always enjoyed the refreshments. Many non-resident tax payers who had become acquainted with Czar during the summer vacation mentioned him when writing regarding taxes.

That Czar was greatly admired and loved by his mistress is evident by the following verses penned by Miss McColl and published in the magazine "Candy and Soda Profits." He is long, and lithe of limb.

To Czar, My Wolfhound
Ten years have passed over him;
Yet even now, as puppies play,
He'll seize a stick and then away
He'll run, in unfeigned frenzy.

To him I have never lied—
He is faith personified;
Though he does not question why,
Sometimes he will sulkily sigh,
His calm eyes filled with wonder.

I belong to him as much
As he belongs to me, for such
Devotion my love and sympathy.
(They call him my "whiteshadow.")

When his earth-days have passed by
I'll seek his spirit in the sky.
Perhaps some soft, faint blur I'll see,
Then I'll say: "That must be he,
That nimble, nebulous sun-dog!"

REACTION DUE FROM REALISTIC DRAMA

People Tired of Seeing Characters and Secrets of Underworld on Stage

GARNS INTERPRETS DRAMA

Brainerd Musical Club Delighted by Varied and Highly Artistic Program Saturday

John Seaman Garms and Nadine Louis charmed and delighted their audience last Saturday with a varied and highly artistic program before the Brainerd Musical club.

First, Mr. Garms gave his opinion of Broadway plays in ensemble. In substance, it was to the effect that the realistic drama had run its course in morbidness and sordidness, and a reaction was about due and was forecast by some of this year's plays. He gave a brief sketch of realism from the days of Ibsen. He said that romance had gone so far in the opposite direction that it had little relation to life. This was illustrated by Sardou's "Diplomacy" which had been given in Minneapolis during the week. While it was an interesting piece of fiction, everything was too cleverly arranged, too well-timed—things didn't happen that way in real life. It was because the stage was getting too far away from life, that realism was welcomed. But now the pendulum had swung too far the other way and people were getting fed up with the characters and secrets of the underworld. Even some of the dramatists themselves were becoming disgusted with the sex theme and were beginning to realize that while all of these evils are in life, they are not the whole of life. While life has its seamy side, most moral mortals live, on the whole, a healthy, wholesome, vigorous life. Garbage isn't the usual diet of mankind, even though a few individuals enjoy decayed intellectual food and seem to revel in it. As an illustration of the reaction of the dramatists, he sighted Eugene O'Neill's "Lazarus Laughed" which, he declared, had deep spiritual significance.

Leaving the discussion of the drama, Mr. Garms took up the relation of poetry to music, under the title "Where Words Leave off and Music Begins." His thesis was that certain poems or blank verse or even highly emotionalized prose, which naturally swung into rhythm, needed a background of music for their best interpretation. He proceeded to illustrate his point by giving "The Highwayman" for which Mrs. Louis had written a musical setting. This was a highly romantic highwayman, a sort of Robin Hood who came to visit the landlord's daughter at the risk of his life, and the music helped to visualize the flying steed with his dauntless rider, the love scene, and the tragic end of this reckless romance.

"Not Understood" became better understood by means of its impressive musical accompaniment, but "The Fish Are in the Bay" was, perhaps, the number to which the music added most-giving vividness to that call to action to those whose livelihood depends upon a successful catch, and deepening the meaning of the childhood romance with which that call was associated.

Among the humorous numbers, those most thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed were "Love is a Bubble," "Kick Under the Table" and "There Little Girl"—the essence of the last being that however men might criticize woman's garb, and however shocking or ridiculous it might appear to them, they always "fell for them," whether their fashions belonged to the Victorian age or represented the flaming youth of today and that, after all, it was not land to Montreal, refuel and then continue to New York.

Von Huenefeld's wireless to the consul asked him for information regarding landing and taking-off facilities here. He also asked whether supplies of gasoline, suitable for the Bremen, would be available in Montreal.

Curtiss Field, N. Y., April 16.—Miss Hera Junkers prepared today to fly the sister ship of the Bremen to Montreal and there lay plans for a rescue expedition to Greenly Island, where Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld and his two companions are stranded.

Miss Junkers, daughter of the manufacturer of the Bremen, will be accompanied by Fred Melchior, chief pilot of the Junkers Company in America, and by a mechanic.

A message from Huenefeld requesting benzol, a new propeller and spare parts for the damaged trans-Atlantic plane was received today by Miss Junkers. A landing gear was sent north last night by train, and the relief expedition will pick it up in Montreal.

Miss Junkers said the plane would leave this afternoon.

The following dispatch was filed at Seven Islands at 6 P. M. Sunday and routed via Fame Point. It was received by the United Press at 1 P. M. today, indicating the difficulty of transmission from the far north.

Seven Islands, Que., April 15.—(delayed)—One of the heaviest snow falls of the season swept Greenly Island today. The storm, though still raging at 6 P. M., did not prevent the three fliers of the Bremen from attempting to repair their trans-Atlantic plane.

Communication with Greenly Island is becoming more and more difficult.

The terrific storm, which began at midnight Saturday and still was raging tonight (Sunday) had affected the telegraph lines which run through Labrador and serve the little island in Belle Island straits.

In view of this storm, the flight of Duke Schiller, famous Canadian pilot, with Dr. Louis Cuisinier and Mechanic Thibault — from Murray Bay, Que., to Greenly Island—must be considered as remarkable.

As for the Canadian government steamer Montcalm, which is trying to break through the ice and reach the fliers, it seemed the ice cutter either would be delayed by the heavy ice packs or would be entirely unable to reach the island.

It seemed as though the elements, unsuccessful in their attempt to prevent the Bremen from crossing the Atlantic, were making another attempt to balk the crew of the Bremen.

But the masters of the Bremen were confident they would be able to repair their plane and continue to New York.

Schiller's flight was made in a blinding snowstorm. He flew from Seven Islands to Blanc Sablon in a relatively short time, notwithstanding the storm and strong headwinds which might have destroyed the confidence and courage of any other aviator.

It was hoped here Sunday that with the arrival of the Canadian aviators, they might be able to give some help to the Bremen's crew that would enable the trans-Atlantic plane to continue to its ultimate goal.

But the tempest, it appeared, made a flight nothing short of suicide.

Modern Building to House Young Stock and Care for Their Feed

On the modern dairy farm the calves are taken away from their mothers a few days after birth. While this is not a handicap to their growth and health under the present-day methods of feeding and handling, housing them so they will develop rapidly and so that the work of caring for them at the least possible labor costs requires a building especially designed for the young stock. Such a building is shown in the accompanying illustration.

This calf barn is 78 feet long and 24 feet wide. As will be seen by the floor plan, there are ten pens, six on one side and four on the other side of the feed alley running through the center of the building. There also is a room for mixing the feed for the calves. The plans also include a cross section and various details which furnish sufficient information from which a contractor can undertake the actual building of this barn.

Puts an End to Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask H. P. Dunn or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle of Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunched are reduced to normal. —Adv.

BREMEN LANDED SAFELY ON ICE OF A LAKE

land to Montreal, refuel and then continue to New York.

Von Huenefeld's wireless to the consul asked him for information regarding landing and taking-off facilities here. He also asked whether supplies of gasoline, suitable for the Bremen, would be available in Montreal.

Curtiss Field, N. Y., April 16.—Miss Hera Junkers prepared today to fly the sister ship of the Bremen to Montreal and there lay plans for a rescue expedition to Greenly Island, where Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld and his two companions are stranded.

Miss Junkers, daughter of the manufacturer of the Bremen, will be accompanied by Fred Melchior, chief pilot of the Junkers Company in America, and by a mechanic.

A message from Huenefeld requesting benzol, a new propeller and spare parts for the damaged trans-Atlantic plane was received today by Miss Junkers. A landing gear was sent north last night by train, and the relief expedition will pick it up in Montreal.

Miss Junkers said the plane would leave this afternoon.

The following dispatch was filed at Seven Islands at 6 P. M. Sunday and routed via Fame Point. It was received by the United Press at 1 P. M. today, indicating the difficulty of transmission from the far north.

Seven Islands, Que., April 15.—(delayed)—One of the heaviest snow falls of the season swept Greenly Island today. The storm, though still raging at 6 P. M., did not prevent the three fliers of the Bremen from attempting to repair their trans-Atlantic plane.

Communication with Greenly Island is becoming more and more difficult.

The terrific storm, which began at midnight Saturday and still was raging tonight (Sunday) had affected the telegraph lines which run through Labrador and serve the little island in Belle Island straits.

In view of this storm, the flight of Duke Schiller, famous Canadian pilot, with Dr. Louis Cuisinier and Mechanic Thibault — from Murray Bay, Que., to Greenly Island—must be considered as remarkable.

As for the Canadian government steamer Montcalm, which is trying to break through the ice and reach the fliers, it seemed the ice cutter either would be delayed by the heavy ice packs or would be entirely unable to reach the island.

It seemed as though the elements, unsuccessful in their attempt to prevent the Bremen from crossing the Atlantic, were making another attempt to balk the crew of the Bremen.

But the masters of the Bremen were confident they would be able to repair their plane and continue to New York.

Schiller's flight was made in a blinding snowstorm. He flew from Seven Islands to Blanc Sablon in a relatively short time, notwithstanding the storm and strong headwinds which might have destroyed the confidence and courage of any other aviator.

It was hoped here Sunday that with the arrival of the Canadian aviators, they might be able to give some help to the Bremen's crew that would enable the trans-Atlantic plane to continue to its ultimate goal.

But the tempest, it appeared, made a flight nothing short of suicide.

On the modern dairy farm the calves are taken away from their mothers a few days after birth. While this is not a handicap to their growth and health under the present-day methods of feeding and handling, housing them so they will develop rapidly and so that the work of caring for them at the least possible labor costs requires a building especially designed for the young stock. Such a building is shown in the accompanying illustration.

This calf barn is 78 feet long and 24 feet wide. As will be seen by the floor plan, there are ten pens, six on one side and four on the other side of the feed alley running through the center of the building. There also is a room for mixing the feed for the calves. The plans also include a cross section and various details which furnish sufficient information from which a contractor can undertake the actual building of this barn.

Puts an End to Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moene's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask H. P. Dunn or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moene's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle of Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moene's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bursae are reduced to normal. —Adv.
